

The Sandwich Model within a Paragraph

Consider this section of a paragraph talking about a famous baseball player:

Ernie Banks, known affectionately as “Mr. Cub” among the Chicago fans, exhibited a passion for baseball that was evident throughout his career. He is most famous for his famed and frequent remark, “Let’s play two today!” The idea that a professional ballplayer pulling in plenty of money would have such childlike enthusiasm, hoping to play not simply nine innings, but double that, is a testament to his love for the game.

The “Bread” INTRODUCING the context before the support is given:

Ernie Banks, known affectionately as “Mr. Cub” among the Chicago fans, exhibited a passion for baseball that was evident throughout his career.

INTRODUCE the substantive detail, example, or person responsible for quotation

The “Meat”, or the support, INSERTED

He is most famous for his famed and frequent remark, “Let’s play two today!”

INSERT the detail, example or quotation

The “Bread” providing INSIGHT or commentary about the support point:

The idea that a professional ballplayer pulling in plenty of money would have such childlike enthusiasm, hoping to play not simply nine innings, but double that, is a testament to his love for the game.
